General Description of the Purkeville Hydropathic Institute.

The main building is three stories high, standing back from the street about one hundred feet, with a semicircular grass plot in front, and contains thirty to forty rooms. The grounds around the house are tastefully laid out with walks and planted with trees, shrubs, &c. On the left of the entrance to these grounds is a cottage containing four rooms, used by male patients as a bathing house, with every convenience for "packing," bathing, &c.; on the right of the entrance, about two hundred feet distant, stands a similar cottage, used by the ladies for similar purposes.

In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hun In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one numbered feet, are three other cottages, some eighty feet apart. One of these is the laundry, with a hydrant at the door; the other two are occupied by the servants.

The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as well as into the main building, and all the waste water well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

THE WATER WORKS

Consist of a circular stone building, standing on the brow of a hill, surmounted by a large codar reservoir containing five hundred barrels, brought from a never-failing spring of pure cold water in the side of the hill, by "a hydraulic ram," a self-acting machine of cast from, that is kept constantly going, night and day, by the descent of the water from the spring. The surplus water is carried from the reservoir to a fountain in the water-works yard, surrounded by weeping willows. In the first story of the waterworks is a circular room, containing the douche bath, which is a stream failing from a height of about thirty feet, and can be varied in size from lialf an inch to an inch and a half in diameter. Adjoining the douche room is a dressing room, with marble tables, &c.; the rising douche (for the cure of plies, &c.) is one of the most complete contrivances of the kind, being entirely under the control of the patient using the same.

There are many other appliances, which can be better understood by a personal examination.

NEW PICTORIAL WORKS,

Just published by R. SEARS, and for sale at No. 128

Nassau street, New York.

A MERICAN GIFT BOOKS FOR 1851.—Agents are wanted to circulate the following new and beautiful works, (refail price, $2.50 per vol.) A new and complete PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA; with a descriptive account of those countries and their inhabitants, from the earliest period of authentic history to the present time. In which the editor has treated not only of the historical events, but also of the manners, customs, religion, literature, and domestic habits of the people of those immense empires.

The embellishments are about two hundred, and of the first order, illustrating whatever is peculiar to the inhabitants, regarding their dress, domestic occupations, their mode of agriculture, commercial pursuits, arts, &c. They are accurate, and each one has been made expressly for the work.

are accurate, and each observed the work.

The volume forms a large octave, containing between five and six hundred pages, printed in the best style, and on good substantial white paper. It is furnished to agents, handsomely bound in muslin, gilt, or leather, as the purchaser may prefer, at a very liberal discount, when quantities of not less than twenty copies are ordered at one time.

THRILLING INCIDENTS OF THE WARS OF THE UNITED STATES;

THRILLING INCIDENTS OF THE WARS OF THE UNITED STATES;
comprising the most striking and remarkable events of the Revolution, the French war, the Tripolitan war, the Indian war, the second war with Great Britain, and the Mexican war; with three hundred engravings! Retail price, $2 50 per volume. Orders respectfully solicited.

SEARS PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best books that agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference; and should be possessed by every family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, and the domestic circle, got up. in a superior siyle of art and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

Our Plan.—The plan the publisher has so successfully carried out for several years, is the obtaining responsible them as agents, who are well known in their own counties, towns, and villages, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise will risk little in sending $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the whole sale cash prices.

Enterprising and active men of respectability and good address, would do well to engage in the sale of the above the Senate, to have released all future or con-tingent interest in the claim referred to. Ac- Extract from a letter to the Editors of the American cording to the Union, his interest was taken at valuation. He went into the Cabinet, then with no interest, direct or contingent, in the adjudication of the claim. We, therefore, repeat that the claim was not pending before the Senate whilst Mr. Corwin was a member; nor did he have any interest in the claim whilst he was a member of the Cabinet."

Mr. Webster did not relinquish his interest in get allowed. He stood up to the work "stiff," held on to his interest, and received his reward. But how did Mr. Corwin relinquish his interest in the Gardiner claim? Was the relinquishment. bona fide or a sham transaction? Did he sellfore he entered the Cabinet? No; he agreed to take for his interest whatever competent and impartial referees, such as John Young and James S. Thayer, esqrs., of New York, should, in the course of time and progress of events, decide that he ought to receive from the steam-mail millionaire who had agreed to purchase, because he wanted to have it in his power to place Thomas Corwin at the head of the Treasury Department. Now, if Mr. Corwin had made clean sale of his interest in the Gardiner claim before he became Secretary of the Treasury, and was as free from it, in purse and in mind, as he would have been if he had never had an in-terest in said claim, how came the referees to wait for months before they decided what Mr.

Corwin's interest was worth? The Board of Commissioners, as it appears, decided, as early as the 12th of March, 1850, to allow Gardiner's claim, but deferred to a later period the fixing of the amount which should be awarded to him. Four months after this, Mr. Corwin took his seat in the Cabinet. The final award to Gardiner, of $428,750, was made among the earliest of the list of awards— I think, before the going out of the year 1850, and before the referees had made up their minds as to the worth of Mr. Corwin's interest.

Now, was it not well enough understood be-tween the parties, that Mr. Corwin was not to know what he was to receive for his interest in the Gardiner claim until the Board should fix the amount to be awarded on said claim? be know what he was to receive before the referees had ascertained the amount of the award ? If he did not, why was he not just as much interested, and anxious, in his position as Secreinterested, and anxious, in his position as Secretary of the Treasury, as he would or could have been, if he had made no agreement to sell out to George Law, esq.? Was he, by such a sale, entirely divested of all interest in the matter? When the award was made, its amount was speedily known. I ask if, on the day the award was made, Mr. Robert Corwin and Dr. Cavelings were not in the lower room occupied. Gardiner were not in the lower room occupied by the Board, and extremely solicitous to get the messenger, who had the award in his hand, the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what the right hand the "left hand knoweth not what had left him and left to show it to them? I ask if they were not both very urgent in their remonstrances to the Secretary of the Board against the publication Gardiner see the award: and next, to the Secretary, for the stand he took in favor of publishing the award at once? I ask if Mr. Commisioner Smith was not appealed to in the matter by Messrs. Robert Corwin and Dr. Gardiner : and if, finally, the Secretary was not overruled, and the publication of the award officially postponed, to suit the wishes of Mr. Robert Corwin

I have heard that these things were done. If they were not, the Secretary to the late Board. who is now the editor of the Richmond Whig, and not at all uninclined to defend the action of the late Commissioners, can answer.

If Mr. Robert Corwin and Dr. Gardiner were thus anxious to keep the Gardiner award from being made public, at the time the commissioners had decided what its amount should be, the question arises as to the quo animo of their nity; plaintive moans and sobs issued from the anxiety. the dark, after they themselves carned the amount of the award? They had to faint and wail, and die in variations. Again their motive and their objects; most unquestion- and she went up with a savage clang and clash, ably. I shall let the public judge what they asked what part of Dr. Corwin's interest in the Mexican claims did he agree to sell to the milionaire (a good Democrat, by-the-by) who was inxious to have Thomas Corwin at the head of the Treasury Department? Did he sell out ly his counsel-fee interest in the Gardiner and lears' claims, or did he bargain to sell his enire interest in all the Mexican claims?

If he got fifteen per centum on the Gardiner laim, and shared equally with Robert Corwin fifteen per centum on the Mears' claim, the mount of his counsel fees in the two claims would be just about what his chosen champions and defenders, in the North American, the Courier and Enquirer, and the Tribune, say the steam-mail millionaire paid him for his interest, agreeable to the judgment of referees.

But it now appears that Dr. Corwin and Robert Corwin purchased a quarter of the Gar-diner claim, with an advance of some $27,000, ess or more, which they obtained as a loan on interest from Mr. Corcoran, the banker, to whom was assigned the said quarter of the claim as "collateral security" for the amount obtained of him.

If this be so, the public ought to know it, and whether, if so, Mr. Corwin's half of the purchase was included in the interest which he sold out to Mr. Law. Should it appear that Dr. Corwin retained his interest in this purchase, and received the proceeds thereof, the public will see how much virtue there is in the declarations, so often officially made, that "he went into the Cabinet with no interest,

"The Gardiner Fraud."

Under the above title, the Republic of Saturday morning has a long editorial article, intended to defend Messrs. Webster and Corwin, of the limit for tune at a dash, and great the Canada line, in Vermont, sold a horse specing Dr. Corwin, and it belongs to him, if they are without found ation, to clear them up. He is at his official post now, and can, and ought to, attend to the matter. As a Cabinet Minister, at the head of the Treasury Department of the buyer respecting the qualities of the horse, the Frenchman gave a favorable article, intended to defend Messrs. Webster and Corwin, of the Cabinet, having been engaged as counsel in some of the claims which were allowed by the late Board of Commissioners, and receiving immense counsel-fees for their influence. I make the following extract from the Republic's defence:

EARLY MARRIAGES .- The last number Hunt's Merchants' Magazine gives a sketch of the career of Mr. John Grigg, an eminent bookseller of Philadelphia. The sketch concludes by giving some views and opinions of life and business, and rules and conduct necessary to success in life. The following are his notions ou marriage:

Early marriage is a favorite theme of Mr. Grigg's advice to young men. All men, he would say, should be married as soon as possible after twenty-two or twenty-three years of age. A woman of mind will conform to the necessities of the day of small beginnings; and in choosing a wife a man should look at—1st, the heart; 2d, the mind; 3d, the person. A choice made thus soberly and discreetly can hardly be wrong. But, alas! who will look for discretion in a man crazy with love? In that sad plight nobody is capable of judging any thing right. So strong, however, were Mr. Grigg's convictions on this point, despite the intrinsic difficulties of the case, that it became a by-word among his clerks, that if any one wished a permanent place in his house, all he had to do was to get married! Several of his partners and successors in business were clerks whom he had befriended in their boyhood and their poverty. He made it a rule, in fact, to give preference as doeth."

I ask if high words were not used—first to the messenger, because he would not assume the authority to let Mr. Robert Corwin and Dr. nates as a stunner, played 'Sich a gettin' up Stairs,' with variations, in the following effect tive manner: "She first, with great deliberation, played the original and beautiful melody, cutting it, as it were, out of the instrument, and firing off each note so loud, that it must have been heard in the stable. When she had banged out the time slowly, she began a different manner of 'gettin' up stairs,' and did so with a fury and wiftness quite incredible. She spun up stairs; she whirled up stairs; she gallopped up stairs she rattled up stairs; and then, having got the tune to the top of the landing, as it were, she hurled it down again, shricking, to the bottom floor, where it shrank into a crash, as if exhausted with the breathless rapidity of the de-cent. Then Miss W. played the 'gettin' up stairs' with a most pathetic ravishing solem-Why did they want the thing to be keys-you wept and trembled as you were gettin' up stairs,' and Miss W.'s hands seemed and rush of trumpets, as if Miss W. was storm ing a breach." &c.

> BLOOMERS BLOOMING .- The following is from the Boston Transcript:

"Bloomerism is evidently in the ascendant. From every quarter we hear of ladies who have had the courage-some call it the manlinessto assume the new dress. As a general thing, these are isolated cases—it being only here and there, in any community, that a lady is willing to run the gauntlet of prejudice and gaping curiosity-an ordeal to which the adoption of any material change in costume is necessarily exposed. Lowell, however, as we are credibly informed, is rapidly becoming a perfect Bloom-erdom, and already the new dress is the ruling fashion. A gentleman who was in the city of spindles and spinsters, yesterday, informs us, upon his honor as a bachelor, that he saw a many as fifty very pretty ladies adorned with the Bloomer costume. And the dress-makers there, as our informant learned, are so overrun with business that orders have necessarily to be given some time in advance. One hatter had sold, within a few days, as many as two hundred of the Bloomer hats.

IMPRISONING WITNESSES .- The Grand Jury of Boston recently called attention to the fact that one hundred and sixty-two witnesses for the State had been confined during the past six months in jail, because they were unable to give bail for their appearance? The Grand Jury thought they should have better fare.

The Yankee, caring little for the looks of the horse, of which he could judge for himself, without the seller's assistance, and being fully persuaded, after minute inspection, that the beast was worth the moderate sum asked for him, made the purchase and took him home. A CANDID WITNESS.—The last modern specimen of candor in a witness was exhibited during the trial of the Michigan case. The exertions of the counsel were turned to impeaching the testimony of one Henry Phelps, and the witness had the assurance to answer as follows:

S. Whitney, being sworn, said, I had some words with Phelps, after I got back from Oakland; I described the land to Phelps, and he told me I did not describe the land at all; I stuck to it that I had been on the land but I stuck to it that I had been on the land, but I lied about it, and he had the impudence to intimate it, and even said to me that I lied about it; I had a quarrel with him, this Spring I think it was, but I am not certain; I can't remember of ever having caught Phelps in a lie, but he has caught me here in one under oath; I don't feel bound to tell the truth on all frivolous affairs!

A young spark, who boarded at one of our principal hotels, managed for a long time, by one artifice or another, to postpone the payment of his bill. At last the landlord became impatient, and, stepping up to his juvenile boarder, tapped him gently on the shoulder and asked him for some money. "I have not a red cent about me at present," was the laconic reply. 'But, my dear sir," said the landlord, "I can't afford to keep a boarding-house without being paid." "Well, hang it," exclaimed our young philosopher, "if you can't afford it, sell out to some one that can !"

ONE OF THE RETORTS.—During the last hours of the session of the New Hampshire Legislature, when the Sergeant-at-Arms was requiring the attendance of every member, Mr. Kittredge, of Canaan, asked leave to be absent ten minutes, pledging himself to return within that time. The request being refused, a division was called for, when Mr. Kittredge himself rose in favor of the motion. Speaker: "The gentleman from Canaan must not vote in a case in which he is interested." Mr. Kittredge: "Why, at the commencement of the session, your honor voted for yourself as Speaker." Speaker: "The gentleman may go out."—Lowell Courier.

THE EMPEROR OF CHINA.-The young Emperor of China, who succeeded his father at his death, February, 1850, having at his succession rejected the demands addressed to him by the mandarins, for permission to persecute the Christians within his dominions, published a decree in the month of June, in the same year, permitting the free exercise of the Christian religion throughout his dominions. The Emperor at the same time invited four missionaries to wait upon him, who were to be lodged in his palace. Monsignor Perronnean, Bishop of China, states that the Emperor was educated by a Christian lady, in whom the late Emperor placed unbounded confidence.

THE STRIKE AT PATERSON, N. J .- A mass meeting was held in Paterson, on Tuesday evening, at the Odd Fellows' Hall, in favor of the "Ten Hour Law." At the time appointed, the room was filled, principally with the young men employed in the cotton mills and machine Jacob A. Hopper was appointed President, and James Dunn, Secretary. Thomas D. Hoxsey offered some resolutions and addressed the meeting. During the remarks of Mr. H., he received warm and vociferous applause, and three cheers were given for Patrick Maginnis and John Rile, the first the owner of a cotton mill, and the latter a silk mill, both of whom have started their mills on the ten hour system. The resolutions were then passed.

No-LICENSE LAW IN ILLINOIS .- The following s the substance of the no-license bill which has passed the Legislature of Illinois:

1. It repeals all present license laws. 2. Prohibits the sale of intoxicating drinks in less quantity than one quart, under a penalty

3. If sold to minors, increases the fine from $30 to $100. 4. Provides for a penalty of not less than $25, nor over $100 for selling more than a quart, and permitting the same to be drunk on the premises of the seller. 5. Giving away liquor to come within the The following hit at the transcendental, unin-
